OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. Global fixed income markets gained modestly in May. Yields rose driven by expectations of a more aggressive monetary policy tightening by global central banks in a bid to curb inflation. The Federal Reserve raised its interest rates by half a percentage point and announced that it will start reducing its balance sheet in June. US Treasury yield curve steepened through the month as shorter-term yields declined. The US 2-year yield declined by 16 basis points while the US 30-year yield rose by 5 basis points, closing at 2.56% and 3.05% respectively. Riskier credit bonds outperformed comparable government bonds, led by US investment-grade and high-yield credit. Corporate credit spreads were mixed across sectors, with investment-grade credit spreads narrowing by 5 basis points while spreads of high-yield and emerging-market credit widened by 24 and 12 basis points, respectively.

Fund Performance. The fund returned -0.45%, lagging the benchmark by 72 basis points. Security selection detracted from performance.

Fund Strategy. Due to recent geopolitical events, inflation will impact every sector of the economy in 2022 and identifying companies able to thrive in this new environment is likely to be increasingly important. In navigating this period, some of the major structural trends that had been occurring previously have accelerated; such as the increasing market share of electric vehicles sold, increased recycled content in clothing and packaging, and record installations of wind turbines and solar panels. The recent Russia-Ukraine war has resulted in the world, particularly Europe, determined to reduce their reliance on traditional sources of energy such as oil and gas, requiring large investments in renewable energy in the coming years. We believe that strong ESG companies are likely to generate positive financial performance over time as investing in sustainability can deliver higher growth and returns through innovation, higher operational efficiency and better risk management.
