OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. Asian equities ended the month down in April, after a positive month in March. Markets were tested as geopolitical tension between China and US resurfaced. Profit taking in the tech sector also affected markets. MSCI Asia Pacific ex-Japan Net Index returned -1.7% for the month.

Fund Performance. The fund returned 1.21% in April, outperforming the benchmark by 121 basis points as internet stocks pulled back. On the positive side, stock selection and underweight in consumer discretionary and communications services along with the overweight in financials helped the fund's performance. On the negative side, underweight in Healthcare and India detracted from performance.

Fund Strategy. Inflation has been falling across the world as issues of supply chain constraints, high shipping and energy costs, and commodity scarcity seem mostly resolved. Moreover, with a Fed on pause after three years of aggressive rate increases, Asian central banks have room to cut or pause their own rate-hiking cycles. Looking ahead, less risk of repeated downward revisions is seen and there may be opportunity for upside in some sectors and countries due to China's reopening. The earnings outlook for Asia Pacific is more encouraging than other regions in 2023, in large part because Asia Pacific experienced earnings downgrades throughout 2022. The fund will continue to invest in equity securities in the Asia Pacific region (excluding Japan) that are expected to pay dividends.
