OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. Asian equities ended the month down in February, following the strong performance in January. The correction occurred amid re-escalated US-China tensions and delayed Fed pivot, despite the recovery in manufacturing activities in China. Technology and communication services outperformed over the month, while utilities and energy detracted. MSCI Asia Pacific ex-Japan Net Index returned -6.8% for the month.

Fund Performance. The fund returned -5.34% in February, underperforming the benchmark by 185 basis points. On the positive side, stock selection in consumer discretionary, utilities and industrials helped produced gains. On the negative side, stock selection in materials and real estate coupled with the underweight in India detracted from performance.

Fund Strategy. Looking ahead, Asian and Chinese equities are still expected to benefit from a rebound in domestic growth momentum, despite export outlook to likely remain challenging for the coming months. A wider range of outcomes should be expected for many Asia Pacific economies due to the dispersion in commodity dependency and correlation to global growth. The global growth slowdown and geopolitical risks continued to create a cloudier environment in the near term. Given the current market backdrop, the uncertainty facing equity markets has increased the attractiveness of stable business models offered by income stocks. The fund will continue to invest in equity securities in the Asia Pacific region (excluding Japan) that are expected to pay dividends.

The Target Fund must be recognized as a collective investment scheme in its home jurisdiction by a regulatory authority or any regulatory authority acceptable to the BSP to supervise this CIS;
- b) Bank Deposits;
- c) Securities issued by or guaranteed by the Philippine government, or by the BSP;
