Liquidity Risk: Investors are exposed to the risk of loss due to the target fund's inability to convert security holdings to cash immediately or in instances where conversion to cash is possible but at a highly disadvantageous price due to limited participants in the market, low trading volumes, market disruptions, among others.

Country Risk: Investors are exposed to the risk of loss arising from negative developments in the political, economic and social conditions of the focus countries of the underlying securities of the target fund, which may adversely affect the value of the feeder fund.

OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. Global equities rebounded in May after April's pullback, with the MSCI All Country World Index returning 4.1% for the month as investor sentiment improved amid easing inflation concerns. In the US, the S&P 500 returned 5.0% driven by strong corporate earnings despite rate cuts being pushed back to later this year. The Flash PMI indicated further expansion in business activity, with the manufacturing and services PMIs accelerating to 51.3 and 54.8 in May from 50.0 and 51.3 last month. Eurozone equities advanced driven by increase in business activity and an anticipated policy rate cut in June by the European Central Bank. In Japan, the TOPIX returned 1.1%, lagging the broader global index, as the continued weakness of the Yen dampened market sentiment. Emerging market equities were flat for the month, with the MSCI Emerging Market Index returning 0.6%. Returns were supported by China's improving economic data and stimulus and optimism on the Fed's rate cuts but was offset by profit-taking and risk-off sentiment towards the end of the month. The MSCI World Health Care returned 2.7% over the month. Within the index, all of the sectors rose over the month. Biopharma large cap and biopharma mid cap were the top performing sectors, while health care services and medical technology were the bottom performing sectors for the period.

Fund Performance. The fund returned 2.38% in May, lagging the benchmark by 29 basis points. Allocation effect was driven by our underweight to biopharma large cap and out of benchmark allocation to biopharma small cap, but partially offset by our underweight to medical technology. Strong selection in health care services was partially offset by selection in biopharma mid cap.

Fund Strategy. Groundbreaking innovation, supportive valuations and business models positioned to show resilience through the cycle should benefit the sector over the long-term. Within the biopharma industry, breakthrough innovations continue to provide attractive opportunities. In the US, the fund continues to monitor the next steps in IRA policy implementation, but valuations remain attractive and recent developments continue to support robust growth assumptions for major indications. Outside of biopharma, medical technology companies have numerous opportunities due to advancements in technology development, engineering capabilities and integrated informatics. Recent volatility and disruption across the subsector have created new investment opportunities, particularly across interventional cardiology, life science tools, and diagnostics including (blood) biopsy, where valuations look attractive. Within health care services, the fund favors companies focused on the societal challenge on improving patient outcomes while reining in costs. The fund will continue to favor companies that develop innovative products designed to address important unmet medical needs. Over the long term, the tailwinds of innovation and an aging population should continue to drive growth for the sector.
