OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. Global equities declined in December, with the MSCI All Country World Index posting a -2.1% return for the month. In the US, the S&P 500 dropped -2.0%, as investor sentiment weakened due to expectations of fewer policy rate cuts in 2025, driven by sticky inflation. US inflation, measured by the consumer price index (CPI), rose in November to 2.7% from 2.6% previous month. Despite this, the Federal Reserve (Fed) implemented its third 25bps interest rate reduction of the year. Meanwhile, the US economy added 227,000 jobs in November, rebounding sharply from October's 36,000 jobs gain. The composite purchasing managers' index (PMI) increased to 55.4 in December from 54.9 previous month, signaling private-sector expansion, led by a rise in the services PMI to 56.8 from 56.1, though manufacturing PMI slipped to 49.4 from 49.7. In Europe, the MSCI Europe Index declined by -1.0%. Although the European Central Bank (ECB) cut its deposit rate by 25bps as expected, they warned about the slowing growth in the Eurozone, emphasizing the need for stronger consumer spending and business investment to sustain recovery. In Japan, equities rose for the month, with the TOPIX gaining 4.0%, supported by a weaker yen that benefited export-focused industries. Emerging market equities remained flat, with the MSCI Emerging Market Index returning 0.2% following China's announcement of plans for increased public borrowing and spending in 2025.

Within the fixed income space, global fixed income markets posted negative returns in December, with the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Bond Index returning -2.1%. The US Federal Reserve (Fed) reduced interest rates by 25 basis points in December. Although the Fed maintained an easing stance, a slower and more measured pace of future rate cuts was signaled during the meeting. The updated median projection from the Fed's dot plot now anticipates only 50 basis points of rate reductions in 2025. As a result, yields across the US Treasury yield curve rose, with the 2-year, 10-year, and 30-year notes increasing by 9, 40, and 42 basis points to end December at 4.1%, 4.2%, and 4.4%, respectively. Credit markets outperformed the broader fixed income market, with global investment grade, high yield, and emerging market debt returning -1.8%, -0.5%, and -1.2%, respectively, as spreads widened across all sectors.

Fund Performance. The fund returned -2.00%, underperforming the benchmark by 26 basis points. Security selection within the fund detracted from performance.

Fund Strategy. We expect major structural trends in sustainability, such as increasing market share of electric vehicles and record installation of wind turbines and solar panels, to continue. The ongoing Russia-Ukraine war, has resulted in the world, particularly Europe, determined to reduce their reliance on traditional sources of energy such as oil in gas, requiring large investments in renewable energy in the coming years. In addition, we continue to see support for green technologies through government policies across the globe. We believe that strong ESG companies are likely to generate positive financial performance over time as investing in sustainability can deliver higher growth and returns through innovation, higher operational efficiency and better risk management.
