OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. Asian equities ended the month in the green. AI-related names led the charge along with the recovery in China and the Value Up program in Korea. Taiwan and Korea appreciated the most, while the bottom-performing markets were Hong Kong and the Philippines. Taiwan's gains were led by investor buying large caps stocks along with AI-related names. Korea was among the top-performing markets as industrial production prints strongly rebounded, above expectations. AI related names in Korea also benefited from the general AI trend. Hong Kong was affected by earnings downgrades and a fall in export numbers. The Philippines fell due to outflows in the consumer staples sector and continued to face higher-than-expected inflation.

Fund Performance. The fund returned 1.47% in March, underperforming the benchmark by 58 basis points. Stock selection in Taiwan and the overweight allocation to Hong Kong detracted from performance.

Fund Strategy. Headline inflation has fallen across the world as supply chain constraints, high shipping and energy costs, and commodity scarcity seem mostly resolved, though base effects will slow further progress. China's economy is in a multi-year adjustment with weakness in real estate and manufacturing weighing on aggregate activity. A more gradual recovery in consumer confidence and consumption, still hampered by high levels of unemployment among the young, means the pick-up in the demand for goods and services will be more extended. The government seems to be acknowledging this with targeted policy support looking to stimulate domestic demand. In contrast to China, prospects in other regions look to be more encouraging. In India and Indonesia, while valuations look stretched in the near term, the two countries supported by policy actions over the last several years look to be enjoying an investment-led expansion. Finally, tech heavy North Asia looks increasingly well positioned as the sector positions for the next decade's big trends: structural demand for AI, cloud adoption and EVs all set to drive growth. The fund will continue to invest in equity securities in the Asia Pacific region (excluding Japan) that are expected to pay dividends.
